Control of Cancer Few Years Away?

SEATTLE (AP)—The president-elect of the American Medical Association, Dr. E. Vincent Askey, said Tuesday medical science is on the threshold of finding ways to control cancer, mental illness and degenerative diseases. He said the key—understanding chemical changes in body cells—may be only a few years away.

First Ladies Chat and Guest Presents Gift to Host

One of the first things Khrushchev did on arrival at White House yesterday was to present Eisenhower with model of spherical instrument cone which Russians landed on moon.—(AP Photofax.)

Chatting gaily and easily with her house guest — just as any average housewife does — is Mamie Eisenhower with Nina Khrushchev, wife of Soviet premier, just before White House dinner.

Tax Relief Search Is Frustrating

By R. O. MARRION
Colonist Staff Reporter

KELOWNA—A year of some frustration in seeking a better deal from the senior governments for municipal taxpayers will be reported to the Union of B.C. Municipalities here today when it opens its annual meeting.

In his presidential report, Reeve C. A. P. Murison of North Cowichan says the joint provincial-municipal committee set up to study municipal proposals in the past year could only agree to disagree.

At a federal-municipal conference in Ottawa last October he says that its historical significance was greater than its practical accomplishment.

FINANCE POLICY

At its last annual meeting, Reeve C. A. P. Murison of North Cowichan says the joint provincial-municipal committee set up to study municipal proposals in the past year could only agree to disagree.

At a federal-municipal conference in Ottawa last October he says that its historical significance was greater than its practical accomplishment.

REQUEST GRANTED

The proposals were put before the provincial cabinet last fall, and "while none of the specific proposals were accepted, the request for a joint committee was granted," Reeve Murison reports.

But, he says, the committee met for a day and a half in June and the UBCM representatives, expecting to explore ways of improving financial relations, were "quickly disillusioned."

Madman Kills Six With School Bomb

HOUSTON, Tex. (UPI)—A demented tile setter and ex-convict threw a powerful suitcase bomb into a crowd of children playing at Edgar A. Poe (white) elementary school yesterday after failing to lure other children "to come here around me." About 900 children were in the school.

Police Capt. Weldon Waycott said the bomb killed six persons, including the man who made it and his seven-year-old son, Paul.

It also killed two other pupils and a teacher and a custodian, who were trying to drive the tile setter, Paul Harald Orgeron, off.

Waycott said 18 persons were injured. They were all pupils, except Mrs. R. E. Doty, the principal, who lost a leg. Orgeron, Waycott said, left a note which said:

"I want Bobby (name illegible) Orgeron, mother of my son, Dusty Paul Orgeron. I want to return my son to her. I have tried hard to get the police department to return my son to her."

"I do not believe I can get killed without others getting killed around me, and I mean my son will get killed, too."

A teacher who is said to have taught herself English, she started off by starting a conversation with the president as he sat down beside her in the limousine for the motorcade ride into Washington.

Later, at the White House formal dinner, Mrs. Khrushchev, in long teal blue and black iridescent taffeta-like floor-length gown, chatted a bit with Mrs. Eisenhower.

She wore a little lipstick for the glittering White House occasion and a brooch on her V-necked dress.

Beside her, Mrs. Eisenhower was a decided contrast, in a gold, heavily embossed brocade gown, with long white kid gloves and diamond earings and necklace.

Mrs. Khrushchev wore no gloves and no other jewelry beside the pin at her neck.

There were no serious incidents. But the world's No. 1 Communist encountered a flurry of boos when he drove about a block from Blair House, the official government mansion, where he is staying, to the White House for his formal meeting with the president.

There also was some applause, but not as loud as the boos. After the nearly two-hour White House meeting, the Soviet chief also ran into some boos when he made the trip back. But this time the applause was louder and some handkerchiefs waved.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

STUTTGART, Germany—An old lady ran out of a hut, flung her arms around Fraulein Feld, and hugged her. The old lady was crying.

Fraulein Feld, a devoted social worker for Catholic Relief Services, had been the old lady's friend in another refugee camp. Now that camp had closed, some of its inmates were settled in government sponsored apartment blocks. Some had merely been transferred to different camps.

So the old lady was here in Aichholz camp. There wasn't a place for her anywhere else. With her arm still around Fraulein Feld, one hand clutching a treasured letter from an "adopter" that she had brought to show, she led the social worker inside for a talk.

Plans of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees call for all refugee camps in Western Europe to be closed by 1960, and their Polish, Ukrainian, Latvian, Estonian, Czech and Hungarian inmates settled elsewhere. But this aim is not likely to be achieved.

To begin with, there isn't room. Builders in crowded West German cities can't keep pace with the demand for

Sometimes They Cry

"She wants me to be godmother to her baby, and you to be godfather," Fraulein Feld said. But I told her you wouldn't be able to, because you are going away tomorrow."

I met a decent, elderly couple who were separated from their six children in Poland early in the war, and have not heard a word of them since.

"Sometimes they cry," said Herr Porada.

I met the man who cursed Canada because his adopters had not sent him the things he begged for.

Herr Porada and Fraulein Feld and I drove in a Volkswagen through the beautiful countryside, past booming factories, to other refugee camps: Ludwigsburg, Vaihingen.

They were all much the same: flimsy barracks with faded and peeling paint, open central washrooms with only cold water, outdoor toilets; chickens, rabbits and dogs; little patches of garden with scarlet runner flowers and their fat pods making a brave show.

Soon the frost would end the gardens. These camps, bear-

Struggle Against Rules

These are the stories of the struggle of human beings against rules and circumstances. I think the stories are true in their outlines, although blurred in detail by the wishful thinking of desperate people.

I asked a Canadian immigration official why, for example, a refugee should be denied permission to enter Canada just because he had once suffered—and recovered from—an attack of TB.

"Surely, since TB is so much easier to control than it was 10 years ago, these rules should be relaxed," I said.

"Nobody is turned down simply because he once had TB," the official said. "He would be rejected if he was an active case. We don't decide such things on one point alone, but on the whole picture."

Open Door Wider

I had been informed that last year Canada gave $500,000 in cash and $1,500,000 in grain toward keeping 800,000 Palestinian Arab refugees from dying of starvation; that Canada had given $1,000,000 to Hungarian refugees (of whom more than 14,000 are still in Austria); that Canada had also given $678,000 over four years to the United Nations High Commissioner's resettlement program, focussed on 12,000 refugees in camps in Europe; and that Canada had pledged $290,000 for the latter program in 1959.

The record had been good. Yet it seemed to me that Canada could do more still to ease world-wide distress by opening the immigration door a fraction wider to take in a few more people not because they would make good citizens or because they had relatives to vouch for them, but because they were in trouble.

Sweden has taken in 3,000 TB cases, many of whom now have the disease arrested; Norway, many blind; Denmark, Sweden, Switzerland, and the Netherlands, family groups with one member to be placed in a home for the aged; Australia and New Zealand, families with one handicapped mem-members seen here readying building for the event are Mrs. H. Holdsworth, Mrs. R. E. Foster and Mrs. H. N. Cliff. Open house runs from 2 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. today and 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. tomorrow. (Colonist photo.)

Elderly Man Found Starving

An elderly man who apparently had not eaten in several days, was taken yesterday from a city hotel room to Royal Jubilee Hospital for treatment. Police called by the Lincoln Hotel, 1319½ Broad Street, found John Hudson, 72, in bed suffering from severe stomach pains.

A hospital spokesman said Mr. Hudson was in "fairly good" condition but apparently hadn't eaten for days.

Chest Leader Confident

Eric Mallet, chairman of the Greater Victoria Community Chest's 1959 campaign, is confident that the target of $325,000 will be reached.

He said at a meeting of the public service division of the campaign yesterday, it was the division's final meeting before the start of the campaign, Sept. 25.

Verne Davidson, chairman of the division, reported that final arrangements have been made to supply Chest kits to the hundreds of canvassers who will help the Chest drive.

Toastmasters Set Meeting

First meeting of the season of the Victoria Toastmasters Club, No. 38 (First Canadian), will be held Thursday at 6 p.m. in the Pacific Club.

The club is open to men over 21 interested in better listening, thinking and speaking.

BCPC Administration Shift

Power Manager Post Abolished

By ALEC MERRIMAN

The B.C. Power Commission yesterday abolished the post of general manager and has assigned top administrative responsibilities to a three-member executive committee.

Robert C. McDermid, acting general manager and chief engineer since former general manager H. Lee Briggs was dismissed last November, becomes manager of engineering and operations and chairman of the new BCPC senior staff executive committee.

He will be the principal engineering officer, responsible for all engineering and for the production of power. Although he has been relieved of the responsibilities of direction of administration and financial departments, his salary remains at $20,000 a year—$18,000 salary plus a $2,000 a year allowance as chairman of the executive committee.

WIDER DUTIES

Garth Griffiths, director of administration, will assume greater responsibilities as the commission's principal administrative officer and will direct the activities of the power districts, legal, personnel, load development, information and secretarial divisions, at a salary of $15,500 a year.

I. R. A. Mills, now director of the commission's financial branch, will become controller and will have responsibility for the supervision and control of commission finances at a salary of $12,500 a year.

Appointments were effective last night.

Commission chairman Hugh L. Keenleyside said the new organization did not indicate a major shakeup in the power commission. "It may be that from time to time changes will be necessary, but I hope this will remain the form of organization," he said.

DIVISIONAL TIES

He said the three active commissioners will likely each concentrate on the division in which they have particular competence—F. A. Lee, who is a power expert, on the engineering and operations side; F. A. Smith, who is a financial expert, on the financial branch; and Mr. Keenleyside on the administration side.

The other two members, Mines Minister Kenneth Kiernan and Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston, will concentrate on matters of particular concern to the government, but also will participate actively and directly in all BCPC matters, he said.

'Knock Me Out' Cries Dying Man

LINCOLN, England (UPI)—Four men used a rabbit punch on the back of the neck to ease the final agony of a truck driver being burned to death, an inquest was told.

William Marsland said he and three friends tried in vain to free John Fox, 21, from his burning cab. Fox pleaded with them to knock him out. "We hit him at the back of the neck," said Marsland.

The coroner ruled that the death blow was struck with the best of intentions and not as a mercy killing measure.

Education Must Add Fourth 'R'—Research

SASKATOON (CP)—Dr. J. W. T. Spincks, president-elect of the University of Saskatchewan, said Tuesday research must become the fourth "R" to prepare Canadian education for a world of change. "Research is one of the dominant factors in our modern economy," he told more than 500 delegates to the Canadian Education Association convention. "In a world that is characterized by change, we must have scholars and experts and first-class researchers in all the disciplines."

"So to your system of education, characterized broadly by the three Rs of reading, writing and arithmetic, you must add a fourth, research."

Market Unstuck

WINNIPEG (CP)—The value of Canada's upside down seaway stamps dropped sharply Tuesday following reports that at least 2,000 had been released by the printers. However, J. A. Macdonald, director of the post office financial branch, scoffed at the 2,000 stamp report. He said it appeared that only one sheet of 200 stamps was printed although it was too early to know for sure.

An offer of $1,000 was made for one of the misprinted stamps shortly after their discovery was announced last week, but Tuesday the price had slumped to $100.

New Appointments To Pacific Command

Two new appointments to the staff of Rear Admiral H. S. Rayner, flag officer Pacific Coast, follow changes in command of Pacific Command ships announced yesterday. Cmdr. Jack Kornig becomes assistant chief of staff, plans and operations. He relinquished command, Friday, of the destroyer escort HMCS Margaree to Cmdr. E. V. P. Sunderland.

On Oct. 14, Cmdr. D. S. Boyle takes over as assistant chief of staff, personnel and training. He will be succeeded as commanding officer of HMCS Saguenay by Cmdr. E. M. Chadwick, at present on the admiral's staff.

Other recent command appointments: Cmdr. Ian Morrow to HMCS Ottawa; Lt.-Cmdr. R. A. Evans to HMCS Stettler; Lt.-Cmdr. H. V. Clark to HMCS Jonquiere; Lt.-Cmdr. A. G. Kilpatrick to HMCS Beacon Hill; Lt.-Cmdr. W. C. Wilson to HMCS Cowichan.

Darrell Francis De Cook, 3478 Calumet; Robert Leonard Dyke, 2629 Wark; Robert Murdoch MacDonald, 2525 Roseberry, and John Michael Strachan, 12 Erie, were fined $50 each, or in default 30 days, when they pleaded guilty in Saanich police court yesterday to consuming liquor in a public place—atop Mount Douglas.

Harry Eric Liddle, 1122 North Park, and Grant P. Hallberg, 1710 Kings Road, were sentenced yesterday by Magistrate William Ostler in city court following guilty pleas on joint charges of breaking, entering and theft, and of taking a car without the owner's consent.

Liddle was sentenced to six months in jail on each charge, concurrent, and six months, also concurrent, for obstructing a peace officer.

Hallberg had his sentence suspended, and was placed on bond of $500 to obey directions of the probation officer for one year, and place himself on the interdict list.

Because Magistrate Ostler had been unable to find anyone willing to assume responsibility for the youth, Sam Smith, 18, of Turner Island, yesterday was sentenced to four months' definite and two indefinite in the Young Offenders' Unit at Oakalla.

The youth was sentenced for breaking and entering an apartment in James Bay, where he stole a jewel box and bracelet, and for theft of two radios from a car in the Empress Hotel parking lot, last July.

Joseph Cullie, 2614 Forbes, was fined $250 when he pleaded guilty to impaired driving. He was also restricted to driving for business purposes only for six months.

Shutterbug General Kept Troops Hopping

PORTRUSH, England—Gen. Rustu Erdelhun, Turkish chief of staff, whipped through a quick, two-minute ceremonial inspection and the Royal Marines relaxed: it had been quick and painless.

"Now," said Gen. Erdelhun, "Let's do it again."

His aide appeared with a movie camera. The general went through the inspection again, slowly this time, while the colonel darted through the ranks, filming the general looking closely at each marine in turn.

When it was over the Royal Marines relaxed. A bit longer that time, but not so bad, really.

"Now," said Gen. Erdelhun, "could you get them to march about a bit, please?" He took the camera himself.

When an order came to halt, the Royal Marines relaxed. A bit thick, that, but then . . .

"I'm afraid I've run out of film," said Gen. Erdelhun. A marine was sent to get some more, and the march began again.

The demonstration came from a group of several hundred persons gathered in Lafayette Park across from the White House. No boos were heard during the 14-mile ride from the airport to Blair House. The reception then was restrained but courteous by any standard.

A surprise was tossed into the arrangements when Eisenhower took Khrushchev on a helicopter ride over the capital. The president had said he wanted to show the Soviet leader the host of middle-class homes surrounding Washington.

As the helicopter soared at 700 to 1,000 feet, Khrushchev looked down to see Americans mowing their lawns in the pre-dusk hours, shopping at supermarkets and playing golf at a country club.

ONLY TWO HOURS

When the trip ended Khrushchev had just two hours to hurry back to Blair House, dress and return to the White House for a formal dinner given by the president for him and his wife, their two daughters, son and son-in-law.

The president's invitation to Khrushchev specified "white tie." The Soviet premier obeyed to the letter, but just. He wore a white four-in-hand tie, just like the one he wore throughout the day, but a dark business suit instead of the usual "tails." He also wore a conventional white shirt. Khrushchev is said never to have worn formal attire.

BERLIN?

White House press secretary James C. Hagerty refused to say flatly whether the president and Khrushchev discussed the Berlin crisis during yesterday's conference. But he indicated they did, saying it was fair to assume all outstanding issues came up.

Hagerty also said the meeting was kind of a preliminary to the Camp David talks.

Hagerty also said Herter and Gromyko, in their conference today, were expected to prepare subjects for the Camp David discussion. He said they would not draw up an "agenda" because that would be too formal.

The president and Khrushchev were flanked by top aides during the White House meeting.

New Money for Old

MR. FLEMING'S move to refund $550,000,000 in federal public debt maturing on October 1, induced by necessity, has answered some questions for the money market and the public in Canada. The $325,000,000 in new bonds offered to the public is a bid to absorb some of the inactive savings of Canadians and thus keep these accumulations from adding to inflationary trends. The balance of the refunding loan involves an exchange of bonds with the Bank of Canada in the sum of $225,000,000. Apparently apart from both closed and open bond issues, the treasury is also offering an unstated amount of 253-day treasury bills for tender on a repeated pattern.

There can be little question that at the yields offered on the new short-term bonds Mr. Fleming will get the money. The shortest yield on the bonds works out at 6.33 and the longest at 6.55 per cent. Treasury bills tenders on a nine months' basis are likely to be of a comparable yield; making due allowance for the fact that the bonds are discount pieces, and the bills by contrast taxable all of the way. For those with funds for investment, the new offerings are on exceptionally favorable terms.

Mr. Fleming's first problem was to meet the October 1 maturing 3 per cent bonds with something the public would buy. Two-fifths of the maturity was held by the Bank of Canada and the balance was in public hands. The treasury move will refund the $550,000,000 of outstanding bonds without question, and so meet the first problem. Inevitably the cost of the transaction must include the doubling of interest rates between the old issue and the new ones. Also two 5.5 per cent issues may be extended into medium length terms at the option of the holders. However, with some 20 direct and guaranteed issues before the public, the Dominion probably had little range in deciding what form of security would be marketable.

The second problem before the minister of finance was the contentious issue of the available money supply. He has answered that decisively by avoiding closed loans from the chartered banks, and appealing to the public directly to pick up the bulk of the refunding operation. Also, the exchange of bonds, piece for piece, in the hands of the Bank of Canada likewise involves no increase in the principal of that maturing portion of the debt. It is in higher interest that the treasury will pay for these expedients. The increased interest rates will fall in the end on the taxpayers.

Mr. Fleming's move, finally, will cast its shadow forward into the future. Provincial, municipal and corporate money needs are influenced by action taken at Ottawa. Attention will centre now on the forthcoming Dominion savings bond loan timed to follow the current refunding, by November 1, and in which the treasury will be forced to compete with the interest rates it is now establishing.

The difference between the consequences of a return to the inflationary cycle of recent years and a balanced effort by the nation to improve its internal economy is probably the chief problem Mr. Fleming has had to face. He deserves sympathy in that, and public understanding of the long-range issues involved, in taking a stand against inflation.

The New Precedence

TRADITION had it that as one governor-general of Canada gave way to another their paths crossed in mid-Atlantic, one returning home and the other heading for the land of his office. A change in the procedure took place yesterday. As the nation's 19th incumbent assumed the vice-regal post his predecessor merely retired quietly into private life. Both are Canadians.

This circumstance added freshness to the installation ceremony which saw Major-General George P. Vanier clothed in the honors of the Queen's representative in Canada. The assumption seven years ago of the vice-regal office by Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey set a new pattern, as the first native-born governor-general. Yesterday's ceremony confirmed it, and except for the vague possibility of a royal incumbent at some time it is likely that the new tradition will adhere in future appointments. The Queen in Canada will be represented by one of her Canadian subjects.

The retiring governor-general, Mr.

Massey, was at Rideau Hall longer than any of his predecessors, some seven-and-a-half years. Tribute to his fine and valuable services in this high service of state was voiced on behalf of the nation by Prime Minister Diefenbaker who cited the "adornment" he had given his office and declared that he had strengthened the fabric of confederation. Mr. Massey's concept of duty was to further the crown as a unifying symbol, and to that end he was unsparing in his travels, in his speeches, and in the social dignities of his position. In his own farewell radio and television address Mr. Massey revealed the modesty and cultural qualities which made his term of office so successful.

The new governor-general brings to his post the grace of a distinguished French Canadian soldier, seigneur and diplomat, and he likewise should adorn the vice-regal office. As the new precedence is consolidated Canada is fortunate in that her first two native-born governors-general should be men of peculiar fitness for the role which in essence is well exemplified by the incumbency of Canadians.

'Air Canada' Sounds Better

WORD that the directors of Trans-Canada Air Lines are thinking of a change of name for the national air service will give pleasure to most people who take pride in the position which TCA has attained as an international operation. The TCA network of routes is almost global in scope, and for many years its official name has been quite inappropriate, conjuring up for people abroad a picture of a small domestic airline some of whose planes have strayed beyond national boundaries, perhaps on charter flights. TCA does not yet rank with the great airlines of the world but may soon do so if it continues to expand at the rate of the past decade.

"Air Canada" is being considered as a substitute for Trans-Canada Air Lines and seems admirably suitable. Like Air France it has the advantage of being brief and at the same time preserving national identity and prestige. It would also be in keeping with the public ownership status of the airlines of a bilingual country. "Air Canada" has a fine, impressive ring to it and would look right on the huge aircraft which TCA flies to the far corners of the globe.

Co-operation Essential

ONE major result of President Eisenhower's journey to Europe may be a closer understanding of the new allied approach to East-West relations.

It is a matter of style rather than substance. It affects the manner and mood of negotiation rather than the topics at issue. The basic problems in the cold war are still there, but the West will keep on talking about them at every opportunity.

International diplomacy is to be kept fluid, in motion, partly in the hope of gradually influencing Russia toward a civilized foreign policy, partly in line with Sir Winston Churchill's saying that "jaw, jaw" is better than "war, war."

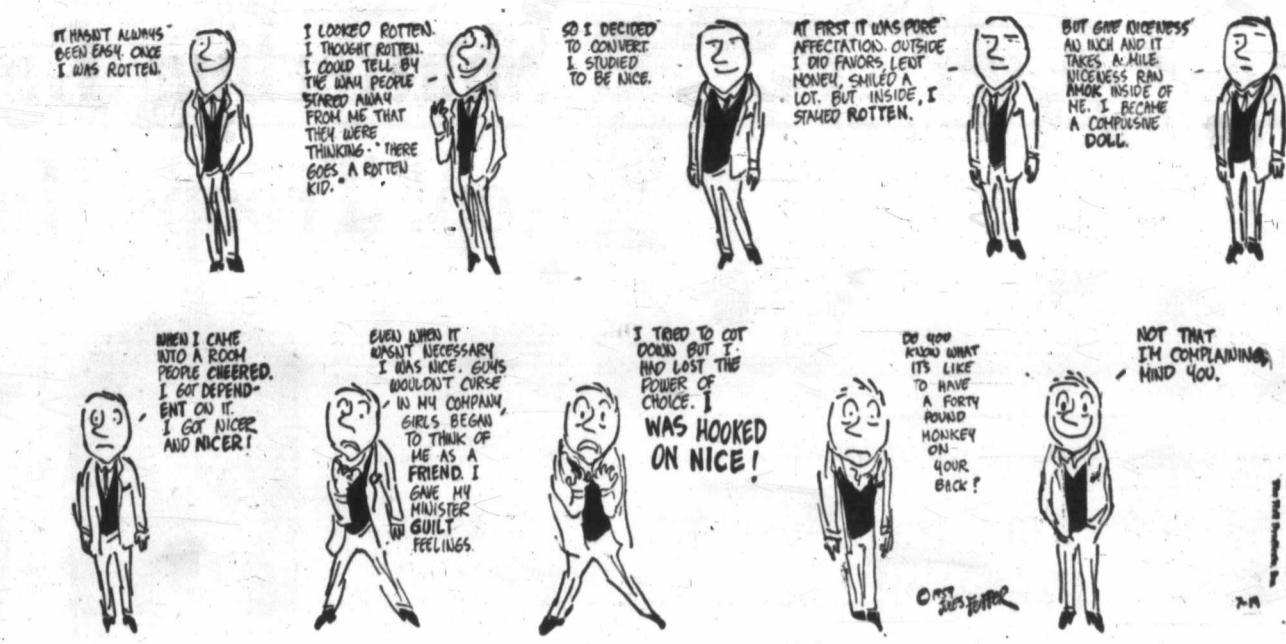

Eisenhower and Prime Minister Macmillan are believed in broad agreement that Russia may mellow.

In his visits to Bonn, London and Paris, it was noticed that the president refrained from speaking provocatively.

During his television broadcast with Macmillan he spoke of associating Russia with moves to help the 1,700,000,000 people in underprivileged countries. He said:

"They are just going to have an explosion if we do not help them and the biggest co-operative job of all the world which calls itself civilized—including the Soviet—is on a co-operative basis to help these people so that they can achieve their legitimate aspirations and that is a problem which every one of us must address himself to."

Eisenhower's broad hint that Russia might be asked to co-operate with the West in helping under-developed countries recalls that in recent years Norman Robertson, now external affairs under-secretary in Ottawa, has been urging that Russia should be associated with the free countries in dealing with a wide range of world problems.

Thinking Aloud

"... of shoes—and ships—and sealing wax—of cabbages and kings."

By TOM TAYLOR

THE Russian rocket landed on the moon at a point between the triangularly spaced seas entitled serenity, tranquility and vapors, they say. If one has the vapors one has the blues, I understand, which doubtless accounts for the Blue Mondays of pre-washing machine days. Luniks and washing machines are all of a piece, you know; part of the modern wonders of the world.

There is a legend of course which affirms that on the moon everything is treasured that is wasted, or ill used, on earth; and perhaps the guiding spirit of that celestial sphere might agree that the hammer and sickle is best enshrined where it has landed. If the man in the moon smiles when next he turns his full face upon us it may be proof he is unalarmed by this invasion of his territory. Meantime anyway; for it would be more reassuring all round if current space experiments were not geared to military ambition.

Since man has been headed for the moon for some time now, not counting the penny dreadfuls of my youthful days which foreshadowed so many mechanical miracles to come, the Soviet Lunik is no great surprise. Man, who can do most things except live at peace—with himself or anyone else—was bound to hit that target sooner or later. He is bound to get there himself, too, in the not too distant future. If I am permitted to look on some 20 or 40 years hence there may be a colony of him there, learning as he has so often done before to live in places where once this had been deemed impossible. One would hesitate to deny where his ingenuity might take him.

Indeed, according to Captain Rickenbacker a rocket to the moon is a mere nothing. Consider aviation per se. He can envisage luxury space ships carrying 1,500 passengers round the globe in 10 hours, although what for is not precisely clear. I can scarcely imagine any journey more dull, unless the dropping-off device provides the excitement. Yet this prophecy seems as likely to eventuate as did the fruition of Jules Verne's dreams. Another Pandora's box has been opened and who can say what is yet to come out of it.

I suppose it is the youngsters of the Jet Age who are least moved by Lunik. They were born to a marvelous world, electronically speaking, and have been conditioned to accept each succeeding development with appropriate calm. They carry their transistor sets as mundanely as they do their lunch bags; whereas this writer is still entrapped by the mystery of radio. To a person who might not know by looking under the hood whether the engine of his car was still there—yours truly—the fact that one can hold in the hand a small unconnected box and hear voices 1,000 miles away, seems as astonishing as anything could be, even a landing on the moon.

It is the generation of my vintage, indeed, which can best appreciate the mechanical marvels that crowd upon us so quickly and so copiously. We have the basis for comparison, knowledge of world wherein either washing machine or lunar rocket seemed in truth to be part of sheer moonshine. It would seem an empty world to the teen-ager down the street, who might end up on the moon himself some day. No electric trams, no buses, no motor vehicles, no telephones, no airplanes, no juke boxes, no refrigerators or mixers, no automatic furnaces, no radar, radio or television, no hi-fi or rock 'n' roll.

How did we live, he might ask, and I am apt now to wonder myself. The twentieth has been an amazing century, as the man in the moon is beginning to find out. But I hope those seas of serenity and tranquillity have been well named.

Letter from London

A Metropolis Self-Strangled

By RICHARD L. THOMAS

THE former chairman of the London Transport Executive, Sir John Elliott, in the final report issued in his name before his resignation, declared that London is slowly but surely throttling itself with traffic congestion and then proceeds to blame the private car owner for bringing London's traffic problems to a new pitch of intensity.

The average car owner, of course, blames London Transport, who's lumbering buses and frequent stops are — to them anyway — the main cause of congestion. Officials of London Transport will grudgingly admit that buses do cause congestion but defend it, not unreasonably, on the ground that the bus carries 56 passengers when full, against two people in the average car. They have produced a formula illustrating the amount of road space occupied by bus and car per passenger, illustrating very effectively that buses use road space economically.

Like most nationalized organizations, however, London Transport can see solutions only in terms of banning private cars from certain streets, prohibiting parking and generally creating a set of circumstances which would make everyone who wanted to move about London use London Transport either overground or underground.

Actually there are abundant simple and effective remedies to London's traffic congestion. It is not a question of traffic engineering but of economics. All that has really happened is that London, as indeed many other parts of Britain, has run out of road—and the underground railways, also operated by the London Transport Executive, have run out of track.

For years the underground railway system has been extended at each end of the track—mostly overground at the terminal extensions—with the result that more and more people have been piling into the trains, but the central London stations are the same as ever. Apart from minor improvements such as escalators, automatic signalling and so on, there has been no development. We have tracks on which trains run at 50-second intervals and it is impossible to pack any more trains onto the tracks.

Watch That Tie!

How Women Gauge Men

(From The Ottawa Journal)

THE following intelligence is presented as a public service to the men in the crowd who naively believe that a necktie is only something between one's shirt and coat, a private sartorial matter with only aesthetic implications. Not so at all, a knowing London haberdasher reports. According to this psychologist-salesman, women go about judging a man's very character by the kind of tie he wears.

This observer points out that a printed silk tie tells that the wearer is a tightwad. A tie quietly matching a suit unmistakably suggests to discerning females that the man is a timid soul. The tie which is tied in a small neat knot, whatever its emblem, belongs to the neat, methodical organization man.

The lady killer is adorned in off-

The cost will be astronomical—but so are revenues. The government already takes nearly $300,000,000 a year in taxation on motor vehicles; another $900,000,000 comes from duty on oil; purchase (sales) tax on new motor vehicles and customs duty on foreign automobiles brings in more than $100,000,000; so that revenues directly attributable to motor vehicles exceed $1,300,000,000. The amount actually expended on roads and highways all over the country is estimated to be less than $500,000,000, which includes expenses of maintenance and municipal expenditure for municipal taxes.

The real solution to the road congestion is overhead and underground roads — and a cantilever road overhanging the banks of the Thames has been suggested. Again there are no exceptionally difficult civil engineering problems, but once again the cost is astronomical. What is generally overlooked, however, is that every penny we refrain from spending today will mean that posterity will have to find a dollar. If some genius had foreseen the need for express tubes 50 years ago the cost would have been around $5,000,000 a mile.

Sir John Elliott is probably quite correct in saying that London is strangling herself — but no one is doing very much about it. There is a bit of road widening here and there, the occasional new flyover and underpass, but the effect of many of these improvements is to increase congestion. It makes the way into London easier, but in effect it is pouring traffic into a funnel. The central streets are the same as they were, with very few exceptions.

Engineers are demanding a bold imaginative approach to the problems. First is the necessity to clear the roads for traffic by the elimination of parking. London is richly endowed with possible parking space by means of underground lots beneath the squares. Engineers argue that this is a number one priority. Secondly they say that no building should be erected without provision for adequate parking space for the building and the loading and unloading of goods off the road frontage. These improvements would get the traffic moving again. But looking further forward they see roads built above railway tracks, a cantilever highway overhanging the Thames, and more flyovers and underpasses at points of major congestion. Additionally there is the need for express underground tracks.

This year the government regards itself as progressive because it is actually spending about one-fifth of its annual revenue from motor vehicles on roads. In fact the economic problem of providing for traffic both in London and outside could be met by allocating revenues from the motorist to the construction of highways and parking lots. At the moment the motorist is paying more than his share for the national insurance scheme, atom bombs and other civilized luxuries.

When it is realized that the government extracts more than $3,000,000,000 from drinkers and smokers it should be possible to provide them with better public transport; the smokers and drinkers of England to give London 100 miles of express underground tracks in a single year!

It is really just a question of how to spend the money.

The Packsack

By GREGORY CLARK

MY nephew has a dog called George. I do not recall a dog by the name of George in a long life of dog fancying. Dogs' names, as a matter of fact, are pretty unimaginative: Sport, Jack, Nip, and similar appellations are the usual thing. What is wanted is a short, clear name that can be uttered sharply and command instant attention of the dog. A dog by the name of Aloysius, for example, could be excused for never answering his name.

In the case of George, he arrived in his present domicile while still a ball of fuzz; and since my nephew's family is large, there were eight or ten contenders for naming the puppy. The children proposed that each should call it a different name of his or her own choice. But this was voted down as being too much of a strain on the dog when it grew to man's estate. To solve the problem, it was decided to call it by the name of the family friend who had presented it to my nephew—George.

It is a perfect name. It is short, can be uttered with withering scorn when it is necessary to chastise the dog. It can be shouted across half a city block and it comes out clear, stentorian, with bugle-like overtones, so that the most refractory dog in town can hardly pretend that he didn't hear himself being summoned.

Gregory is no name at all for a dog. I know a budgie by that name and two dogs, one a wire-haired terrier, at which I take no offence, the other a pot-bellied dachshund whose stomach barely clears the ground.

This annoys me.

Letters to the Editor

Faulty Reasoning

I was greatly surprised to read the report from Mr. W. N. Chant regarding expansion of the Victoria College. He cannot fully appreciate the sentiment attached to the name and record of Victoria College. What reasoning to think an edifice with "University" on it in bold letters will impress the rest of the world.

It seems very strange that a minority group such as the Chamber of Commerce should be able to step in and try to overrule the experts, paid to give their advice, and the Victoria College faculty and council, who enjoy such an admirable reputation for the splendid work they have done and are doing.

It is sad to see our neighbors who have taken great pride in their homes during their working years only to find now they have retired their property taxes have increased to such an extent, some up 140 per cent, because of education costs, thus compelling them to sell and move to cheaper accommodation.

You cannot expect these people along with the rest of us to support a fund-raising drive for something which is not fully necessary. Certainly our college needs help but let's be sincere about the demands.

KATHLEEN SHERET.
3811 Miramontes Drive.

Urge to Kill

As a fitting prelude to the festival of killing, known as the hunting season, some "hero" has evidently tried out his gun on our semi-tame seagull.

For many years this bird has come for food and spends many hours around the house. Today the bird appeared with a uselessly trailing leg and blood-stained feathers.

All this district is listed as a bird sanctuary, but that means nothing to the majority who get their hands on a gun. It was a different matter when hunting meant the choice between food and no food. Now dignified as "sport," it is merely an urge to maim or kill.

I hope also that this year we shall be spared pictures of grinning men, their ears draped with dead carcasses. These pictures distress the humane and compassionate, to say nothing of the poor influence on children who see them, whom we are trying to interest in the law of kindness. I suppose it is too much to expect that the individual who inflicted pain and dismemberment on a harmless and useful bird will feel any twinge of conscience or regret.

(MRS.) LILIAN F. HEYWOOD.

Belated Thanks

It has come to our attention that early in the summer a group of small children raised money through a puppet show, hidden treasure stall, candy sales and white elephant stand and that they designated their money for medical research through our auxiliary.

Unfortunately, the money was sent to the past president of our chapter, who was out of the city from May till the end of August and, hence, we have only just received the letter in the past week.

We feel that when children will put their energies into such worthwhile projects they deserve the sincere thanks of our members and public knowledge of their kind work.

As no addressees were enclosed with this money, we would be grateful if you could print this letter to thank Ann Worthington, Bexrud for what they have done and to let them know that their money has been put into the fund for medical research on this dread disease.

It is impossible to ignore the question of West Berlin. It is commonly known that the German revisionists (those intent on regaining lost territory) have made West Berlin the base for their constant undermining and subversive activity directed toward the provoking of war.

We resolutely reject any attempts to ascribe to the Soviet Union the intention of seizing West Berlin and infringing upon the right of the population in this part of the city to preserve its present way of life.

Normalization

On the contrary, in demanding the normalization of the situation in West Berlin, we have proposed to convert it into a free city and to guarantee jointly with the Western states, the preservation there of the way of life and of the social order which suits the West Berlin inhabitants best of all.

This shows that the positions of the government of the Soviet Union and the governments of the Western states, coincide on this question. We and so do they, stand for the

Canadians Attend Liberation Service

ADEGEN, Belgium (AP)—A commemorative ceremony was held at the Canadian military cemetery here, where some 800 Canadian soldiers who fell in 1944 for the liberation of Belgium and Holland are buried. Soldiers from the Queen's Own Rifles of Canada, stationed in Hemer, West Germany, and Belgian navy sailors attended.

independence of West Berlin and for the preservation of the existing way of life there.

Find Agreement

It is, therefore, only necessary to overcome the difficulties born of the cold war in order to find the way to an agreement on West Berlin and on the wider question of the conclusion of a peace treaty with the two German states.

At the same time, we still have substantial differences on a number of questions. I am deeply convinced that there are no fundamental differences on which agreement is impossible. And if we still have differences and have not reached agreement on certain important questions, it is—as we believe, with adequate grounds—a result of the concessions made by the Western powers to Chancellor Adenauer.

Incompetent Builders Called Country-Wide Plague

The Canadian construction industry is plagued with a country-wide problem of incompetent builders, according to J. Eric Harrington, president of the Canadian Construction Association, in Victoria today to present a brief to the B.C. government.

Mr. Harrington said last night that Canada had far too many builders, and many of them were incompetent and lacking in financial backing.

"Any one planning a new building should make sure the contract is placed in the hands of a sound building firm," he said.

"Giving the contract to the lowest bidder without making full inquiries is just asking for trouble," he added.

He said CCA power to halt the activities of builders who were quoting low prices and then failing to complete the job according to specification, was "limited."

"There is nothing to stop anyone from calling himself a builder," he explained.

"Competition among competent builders is keen enough to ensure that the public will get a proper price," he said.

"The trouble arises when one of these quick, one-deal operators puts in an uneconomic bid."

"Any homebuilder should go to the extra expense of consulting an experienced builder and a lawyer before signing a contract" was his advice.

While Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation approves plans for NHA loan homes and has the work inspected during construction, Mr. Harrington said this was not full protection for the owner.

"The NHA makes only two inspections, and these inspections are made not to safeguard the owner, but in its own interests," he said.

Mr. Harrington is on a cross-Canada tour to meet provincial governments as well as CCA members.

Fine in London, But Not Here

Don't Call Them Cops

London constables may prefer to be called "cop" rather than "bobby" — but anyone calling a Greater Victoria constable a cop is in for a rude reply.

Of course, local police spokesmen agree, it may depend on who uses the term, and in what way.

Generally, however, "cop" or "bobby," or any other nickname for a police officer is not acceptable to force members.

Trouble is, on this continent

most nicknames for policemen have insulting connotations. The London constable may feel as a London police magistrate says, that the term "bobby" sounds a bit prissy these days. Perhaps so, officers here say, but "bobby" is generally used in a friendly, even a respectful, way.

Not so with "cop." "That's what we expect from hoods."

Local policemen agree: "Just call us 'officer,' or 'constable.' Never mind the nickname."

Police Start New Task Selling Cars

Want to buy an old car? Victoria city police have five for sale—on an "as is" basis.

The five are a 1940 Buick, a 1940 Plymouth, a 1939 Ford, a 1938 Chevrolet and a 1938 Austin.

All have been, and still are, in the police lot on Fisgard. They've been there for a year, unclaimed.

Offers will be considered, and inquiries may be made at the police station.

Fluoridation

Third Look This Year Requested

Greater Victoria councils will be asked to take another look at a plan to hold fluoridation referendums next December—and for some the look will be their third this year.

Victoria Chamber of Commerce has written the four councils, plus the Greater Victoria school board, asking that they hear representations for a December vote from the chamber's fluoridation subcommittee.

Victoria council, which originally approved a December fluoridation vote, recently changed its mind in favor of a proposal by the Victoria-Esquimalt health board that a referendum be postponed until a 12-month test of fluoride treatment of children's teeth is completed.

Other councils had agreed to place December referendums, but have not yet had a chance to review the health board's recommendation.

Five-Cent Postage Still Hurts

Prospect Lake area residents have renewed a protest to Ottawa that letters addressed to them must bear five cents postage, while letters to most of Saanich are delivered for four cents.

Residents of the area have lodged their complaint with Defence Minister G. R. Pearkes, the member of parliament for Esquimalt-Saanich, and the postmaster-general.

A spokesman for the district explained that few people realize the postage differential and send letters to the Prospect Lake area bearing only four cents. Recipients must then pay two cents to get the letter.

It Tuckers a Fellow Out

This business of breaking an arm in the clothes dryer tucks a fellow right out. Attempts to waken Jimmy Mindenhal, 226 Hartland, as he slept at St. Joseph's Hospital proved vain yesterday, so Colonist photographer Jim Ryan took his picture as he was, with student nurse Grace Richardson. Accident happened Monday evening at child's home, and Jimmy's coming along fine.—(Colonist photo.)

U.S. Motel Operators To View City Facilities

Washington State motel operators will arrive in Victoria close to 100-strong today to get first-hand knowledge of what their guests encounter when they go north of the 49th parallel.

Driver Misses Serious Injury As Truck Careens Down Bank

A Victoria truck driver, his vehicle loaded with tanks of highly inflammable oxygen, escaped with only chest injuries yesterday when his truck careened down a steep bank near Jordan River.

Max Allman, 1264 Denman River.

was rushed to Victoria by West Coast ambulance. He was treated at Royal Jubilee Hospital and released.

Police said the accident happened about 5 p.m. on the B.C. Electric road near Jordan

The truck apparently went out of control before going over the 50-ft embankment, witnesses said. A truck company spokesman said the tanks could have been "quite dangerous if the truck had caught fire."

Indian Painter's Work at New Gallery

Telling story of his favorite painting (Nootka warrior praying for strength to come safely through storm) is Indian artist George Clutesi, whose exhibition opened last night at Apollo Galleries, 1106

Broad Street. The 32 paintings by the one-time pupil of Emily Carr range from $8 to $900. Other paintings in show, open weekdays from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., are by G. M. Abrams-Lytton.—(Colonist photo.)

"We will be starting construction on the courthouse before the end of the year. Work is being planned to give employment during winter months," Mr. Chant said.

He said he expects to call for tenders for rock removal in November. "We expect a continuity of work. As soon as blasting and rock removal is finished, construction men will be ready to proceed with the actual building.

He explained that Premier Bennett sometimes has different views of a year—a calendar year, a year from when he speaks, or the fiscal year which ends March 31.

Box Meal or Sit-Down

Four-Star Luncheons Best

Well-Planned Menus
Make Home Happier

By MURIEL WILSON

A jam sandwich and a bottle of coke is not a good lunch. Neither is a piece of pie and a cup of tea.

Today let's talk about lunches. Lunch is one of the meals that is often neglected . . . a sort of "catch as catch can" meal with no planning at all. By planning I don't mean fussy preparation . . . a simple meal with little thought for its components, and attractively presented. It should be a look-ahead-to-meal.

HOMEMADE SOUP

A four-star lunch should be nourishing, good to look at, good to taste and attractively presented. This holds good for a lunch box meal for man or child or for a sit down meal for the family or for the mother who eats alone. The noon meal should be planned around a protein . . . meat or meat alternate, a vegetable or salad, fruit or sweet and milk. This is a good meal for an adult to take their daily quota of milk.

Any number of food combinations can be worked within this pattern.

FREEZES WELL

With the advent of cooler weather a hot dish or substantial soup is good. How about making a pot of pea soup . . . real French Canadian pea soup. With crusty French bread, celery and carrot sticks and a sweet you have a good lunch. If you don't use all the soup it freezes well and you will have a head start on lunch for another day. This is a real stick-to-the-ribs soup and would be good in a youngster's thermos bottle for a school lunch.

SAVES WORK

A pressure cooker makes short work of pea soup (or any other home-made soup) or you can give it the long slow half-a-day simmer. Use a pound of yellow or green split peas, six cups cold water, a ham bone or the chopped up end of a cottage roll. When I boil a ham I always save the water to use for soup. To the bone, water and peas add one medium onion chopped fine, one cup chopped celery (leaves or outside stalks can be used) one-half cup chopped parsley. Season with salt and freshly ground black pepper to taste.

IMPROVES FLAVOR

I always use Accent. To this quantity I'd use a teaspoon of it. If you would stick to the original French-Canadian recipe you would leave out the celery and parsley. I think they improve the flavor. The pressure cooker will reduce this to thick lusciousness in about 15 minutes at 17 pounds pressure. Otherwise a slow simmer for several hours on the lowest heat.

It should be cooked until all the ingredients lose their identity and soup is really thick. Perhaps this takes a little longer to assemble and prepare than to open the five or six tins which would be Twelve housewives produce Dawson's six-page, home-made newspaper every second Thursday.

Klondike Korner has been appearing regularly for four years as a newsletter of the Nutty Club for the benefit of members who had left the Yukon.

It has a circulation of 400, but much larger reading audience, and its mailing list includes Ireland, France, Italy, South Africa, Colombia, Puerto Rico and Bolivia.

The Nutty Club got its name because it has not had an executive or bylaw in 15 years.

The Klondike Korner is a clearing house of information.

Two years ago, its supply of paper and duplicating equipment were destroyed by fire.

Members of the Nutty Club set up business again in a hotel kitchen.

Now the newspaper goes to press in what was formerly the operating room of the Good Samaritan Hospital.

Your Problems

By Ann Landers

DEAR ANN: I've been a working mother for three years and I'm sick and tired of hearing people say how terrible it is to work and leave a young child at home. I've quit my job three times just to please my husband, but I almost went nuts and had to go back to save my sanity.

I feel better when I get up, get dressed and go to an office in the morning. I have to pay a housekeeper so I don't come out very far ahead financially, as my husband so often points out. But I'm not working for the money. It's a matter of doing what I enjoy.

Would I be better off to become a household drudge and a nervous wreck from being puffed up with a 4-year-old all day? Your 20th Century opinion would be appreciated. —WORKING MOTHER.

Dear Working: My 20th Century opinion is that you should nothing.

No Respect for Father

DEAR ANN: I plan to be married in October. My mother and dad have been divorced since I was six and I have no affection or respect for my father.

I definitely do not want my father to give me away at my wedding. Mother agrees this would be a mockery. She does feel, however, that I should ask one of my uncles.

I want to ask a dear friend of the family who has been wonderful to me through the years.

Please tell me if it would be proper to ask this family friend. Also would it be right to invite my father, but only as a guest? —GEORGIA.

Dear Georgia: It would be perfectly proper (and a high compliment) to ask the family friend. This would also eliminate the sticky problem of WHICH uncle to select. By all means, invite your father—as a guest.

Parman Rites

Couple Goes North

Honeymooning in Fort St. John are Sooke newlyweds Mr. and Mrs. Richard Conrow Parman, married in an evening ceremony in Knox Presbyterian Church.

Dr. E. A. Wright officiated.

The dark-haired bride is Coleen Edna, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Ballendine, Banff, Alta. Groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Parman of Sooke.

For the ceremony Miss Ballendine chose a white formal satin gown with lace accents. Her veil was waist length and she carried red roses with trailing streamers tied with rosebuds.

Her matron of honor, Mrs. Esther French, chose pink chiffon with a bouquet of assorted flowers. The Misses Yvonne Sullivan and Donna Hesp of Sooke wore similar dresses of turquoise.

Flower girls Valerie Ballendine, in yellow, and Lorna Hesp, in mauve, carried mini bouquets.

Best man was Mr. Albert Carlow and ushers Mr. Charles Parman and Mr. Jim Gibson.

Mr. Bob Gibson proposed a wedding toast at a reception at the home of the groom's parents.

The couple will live in Sooke.

Leggett - Dovey

Floral baskets of pink and white carnations and gladioli decorated St. Aidan's United Church for the wedding recently of Miss Isabelle Marguerite Leggett and Mr. Robert Joseph Dovey.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Furness Leggett, 1560 McRae Avenue. The groom's mother is Mrs. E. Dovey, 3325 Woodsworth Street.

For the evening ceremony, the bride chose a heavy white peau-de-soie gown with slight train and lily point sleeves. A dainty jewelled tiara held her full-length veil and she carried a spray of red rosebuds.

Miss Lois Smith of New Westminster was bridesmaid in ballerina-length blue velvet with floral headress and bouquet of yellow marguerite daisies. Flower girl Jan Shellen was in a similar gown.

The groom's brother, Bud, was best man and ushers were another brother, Gordon and Mr. Norman Brodie of Port Moody.

For a honeymoon trip to the U.S. the new bride wore a pink wool suit with black and white accessories.

High Sari, Low Sari

If Wife Suited, Man's Suit Fits

NEW YORK (AP)—Mother knows best what father should wear.

This seems to be an accepted fact among manufacturers, designers and salesmen of men's clothing.

Stanley Goldman, one of the country's leading manufacturers explains it thus:

"The average man dreads the idea of walking into a store and trying on things in front of strange salesmen. So he resists the idea of a new style or a new color. He becomes panicky.

LESS PAINFUL

"His wife, on the other hand, is interested in anything new. Moreover, she knows what looks well on her husband. If she goes along it will be a much less painful performance. When his wife is with him she will urge the man toward new ideas in fashion and color, and after he's accustomed to the idea, he'll like it."

ENOUGH TROUBLE

Goldman doesn't go so far as to say a woman should buy her husband's suits the way she shops for his shirts and pajamas. The man should be present.

But if he's wise, says Goldman, he'll heed the advice of his spouse—unless, of course, she's like the wife who accompanied her husband on a suit-buying trip and chose the dullest, remarking:

"I have enough trouble with other girls chasing him now. I don't want him to look too good."

Everyone's Exhausted

By MARGARET AITKEN

HANKOW, China — It was with surprise that I found myself in this hot spot of China which is also a steel centre.

My objective by nightfall was Peking but we did not get that far. Because of storms, our plane came down in Wuhan and we spent the night in Hankow which is part of a three-city complex in central China. The cities are joined by the Yantze bridge, a modern engineering feat (completed in 1957) of which the Chinese are inordinately proud.

Wuhan and Hankow are

China's chief steel-producing centres and their slogans are: "Work hard for two years to change face of cities and convert into a socialist industrial base."

This slogan seems to work because I have never seen such exhausted looking people in my life. The government's determined effort to change China's economy from an agricultural to an industrial one is being achieved by hands and sweat. Factories are running around the clock and when workers come off their shifts, they are expected to attend night classes.

Slogan: "Everybody must keep studying as long as he lives."

It is China's goal to wipe out illiteracy and to that end there is almost a mass hysteria over education. There are not nearly enough schools yet but one plan, in the formative stage, is to adopt Roman letters and reduce the number of Chinese characters to between 600 and 1,000. That number is all that's necessary to read a popular book or a newspaper.

But it is the ant-like poverty in China that captures one's compassion, and never was it exemplified more than in Hankow. In pre-revolution days Chinese warlords, from Bay council attending the conference are Coun. A. L. Cox and Mrs. Cox, Coun. G. B. Elworthy and Mrs. Elworthy, Coun. F. W. Hawes and Mrs. Hawes, Reeve Alfred C. Wurtele, Esquimalt council, and Mrs. Wurtele and Coun. J. Bryant are also there.

One strange thing about Communism in this country, versus your Russian Communists, is that there is no pretence made about all being equal.

There are about 400,000 peasants and nobody calls them anything else.

Their brows and the sweat of their brows are exploited almost beyond human endurance and those were the people I saw lying on the streets of Hankow.

tion is still going on under the guise of Communist slogans, exhortations, demands and agitations.

In Hankow the heat was so terrific all night (106 degrees) that there was no hope of sleep and I watched a strange phase of Chinese life from a balcony off my hotel room.

All through the early hours of the evening men, women and children gathered on the pavement outside the hotel.

They had bamboo mats or short-legged beds which they placed on the sidewalk and there they slept all night. Babies cried from the heat but exhausted adults seemed to sleep through every sound, including noisy tractors or trucks that occasionally lumbered down the street.

Fly in the Ointment

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

I think that if I were writing a brochure for the Victoria Chamber of Commerce, I'd bang the big drum loud and long in praise of our climate, for you can make it look pretty good on paper.

I'd tell the folks all about our long growing season of 236 days between the average killing frosts of March 27 to Nov. 18. I'd boast about our cool summers and our moderate winters. I'd stress the fact that our annual rainfall is almost 30 inches, which is just about ideal for anyone keen on gardening. When it comes to the distribution of that 30 inches of rain, though, I'm afraid I'd turn chicken and maintain a discreet silence.

This is the one little fly in the ointment—our rains come all at the wrong time. We have to fight all summer with hose and watering can and mulch to keep our gardens alive through the drought, while fire hazards close our forests and municipal authorities enforce sprinkling restrictions. Then, just about the time when we could use some dry weather for the lifting of our spuds and glads and dahlias, along come the fall rains to turn our gardens into a sea of mud.

If we had more rain in the summer and less in the winter, Vancouver Island would indeed be a gardener's paradise. There are spots on this earth of ours far closer to the polar regions than Victoria where palms are planted as boulevard trees—in Cowichan and in parts of Ireland, for instance.

Even the B.C. Power Commission, with its silver iodide generators, cannot do very much to influence the distribution of our annual rainfall. As individual gardeners, though, there are quite a lot of things we can do to minimize its effects.

I have written many times about the techniques of combatting summer drought—of mulching, growing glads and vegetables in trenches to conserve water and running the rows crosswise on sloping ground. We allow the fine lawn mowings to remain on the lawn to insulate the grass roots from the sun, we dig in quantities of organic material to act as a sponge and store moisture underground and we adjust our fertilizer dosages so our plants receive the same nutrition even under low moisture conditions.

In the winter, the thing to remember is that almost all of those drought-fighting techniques must be reversed, for we lose far more plants by drowning than we ever do by frost.

Instead of growing them in trenches, our plants which must stand out through the winter are happier in raised beds, well above the surrounding terrain. Instead of soggy compost, the winter beds should contain a high proportion of sand or grit for food drainage and instead of nitrogen, which makes lush, soft growth, the fertilizers for these winter-standing plants should be rich in phosphorus and potash for hard, sturdy growth.

The sides of such raised beds will break down badly under heavy rain unless they are given some support. A few old logs or lengths of lumber, low walls built of stones or salvaged bricks or even temporary supporting walls made from squares of turf will keep the beds tidy through the winter.

The Viewing World

Beautiful, Big and Brainy

Gardner McKay, a muscled and wildly beautiful young man, had been selected by "Life" magazine as the successor to Tyrone Power in the dreams of women.

McKay has got a press agent who writes prose almost as wildly beautiful as McKay's countenance: "McKay," the agent wrote "Leader of Hollywood's new and fast growing group of outdoor-minded actors... In addition to being an active, physical giant (six foot five) McKay is a man of deep inner dimensions. Among his intellectual diversions are chess, voracious reading, and conversation in four languages. His mountain cottage is stacked with books (Chekhov to D. H. Lawrence)..." and so on.

McKay is the hero of an ABC-TV series called "Adventures in Paradise," (a title Milton was groping for but missed) which is "by James Michener," the Homer of the Pacific Islands. I put "by" in quotes because "by" in television doesn't mean written by in the sense you and I are accustomed to the word.

The actual scripting is done by 25 other writers.

"What exactly are you after?" I inquired of Michener.

The South Pacific," said the author of "South Pacific," "is one of the great romantic adventure spots left to us. The emotional thing we are after is that in an increasingly mechanized world, a guy in his schooner in the vast Pacific is very appealing. I don't think of it as escape fiction because there's a pretty heavy burden of responsibility on the hero."

McKay, the beautiful young giant who will pilot the eighty-foot schooner through thirty-six weeks of storm-tossed television, is already finding it a strenuous life.

"Thirteen hours a day, seven days a week, for four months," he said morosely in one of his four languages. "Who else in television is doing this? I'm in four out of five shots. I get the whey beaten out of me in a warehouse. The guy renders me unconscious. I tell you it's rough."

McKay, who has not been seen on the world's screens (except for a bit part in one picture) already gets astronomical fan mail on the basis of the cover story in "Life."

To sum it all up, the author of "Adventure in Paradise" doesn't actually write it. The islands of the Pacific are the setting except you never see them. The star gets fan mail from a lot of people who have never seen him act. Like the man said, there's no business like show business.

Tragedy Cancels Comedy

HOLLYWOOD (NANA)—Rex Harrison has cancelled his "Taming of the Shrew" plans for Stratford on Avon in England, next summer. He was to have starred in the Shakespeare comedy with tragic Kim Kendall.

Otto Preminger's "Anatomy of a Murder" was passed by British censors, but received an X rating—for adults only. I should hope so!

The vacation is over for young Aga Khan and younger Tracy Pelissier, stepdaughter of movie director Sir Carol Reed. Tracy is now with her mother doing a spot of mountain climbing in Austria. Sir Carol has pooh-poohed the idea of a romance.

My long-time friend, Bradley Kelly, sends me the recipe for the "honey buzz highball"—a new non-alcoholic drink. Ingredients: Take a tall glass, put in two tablespoons of honey, two tablespoons of vinegar dissolved in a little warm water. Fill with ice and soda. I've tried it—delicious.

Stove Blast Burns Girl's Face

Linda Hassall, 15, of 814 Dominion Street, suffered severe face burns when a gas stove oven exploded about noon yesterday at her parents' home.

Last night, she was reported to be in "fairly good" condition at Royal Jubilee Hospital, where she was taken by the Naval Shore Patrol.

Sent to Hospital

Wave Set, Window Harm Tots

Two small children were treated at Royal Jubilee Hospital yesterday for accidents that occurred in their homes.

One-year-old Charlotte Laharty, 141 Beechwood, suffered badly crushed fingers when a window fell on her hand at 4:45 p.m. X-rays taken at hospital showed no bones broken.

Mrs. Laharty said her daughter reached out from her crib and pulled loose a stick holding up a nearby window.

A stomach pump was used on 22-month-old Robert Wyatt, of 1325 Kings Road, who swallowed some home permanent chemical about 3:30 p.m. He was later sent home.

Trailer Taxes Sought

By Colonist Staff Reporter

KELOWNA — The time has come to press for school and municipal taxation of trailer homes, the Union of B.C. Municipalities will be told today.

Mobile homes at present are practically immune from taxation for local purposes, Reeve C. A. P. Murison of North Cowichan says in his presidential report and "a solution to the difficult problem must be found."

She's Whole Parade

By EILEEN LEARROYD
She explodes over your head like a rocket — she's Tallulah Bankhead.

She is not quite as great as Alexander the Great, but she is almost as great.

In fact, when I said that, her secretary, Ted Hook from Las Vegas, wrote it down. "I'm writing all this stuff for a biography," he said.

I could have said more.

Meeting her is like standing on the curb at a parade—with Tallulah the only one in the parade.

She is the drum major, the band and all the regiments.

GUEST OF HONOR

This volatile, dynamic, controversial, vibrant, unpredictable woman, who is also one of the foremost people on the American stage, was guest of honor at a cocktail party last night.

The party was given by her old-time friend and hostess of the last month, Mrs. Dola Cavendish, at her estate, "Dolaura," near Hatley Park.

Curtain time was 5:30 p.m. I'm told Tallulah is 56, which is hard to believe. We know she is a great actress but this is hard to remember under the sheer impact of her personal glitter. "Guest of honor" or the last person at the party, she takes the spotlight because she is only one thousand times as interesting as everybody else.

LONDON DARLING

The darling of London in the '30s, the heroine of the Giants, the chief public relations officer of the Democratic party — she still has enough personal candlepower to light up the city of New York.

A reporter (not me) asked her how she could be "flip" in serious moments. "Sweetie," she said, "we have to be gallant or we die. Be gay, lets all go together, is my motto."

When she talks she tosses her head, snaps her fingers.

She curses a little. She also has a wipe-that-smile-off-your-face technique that I happen to like.

About 30 people came to the party. Tallulah was wearing very svelte pale yellow slacks, a white tailored blouse, yellow cardigan, two gold bracelets (one hiding a watch) and a sapphire about as big as the Bank of Montreal which she rotated around her finger when she became emotional, which was often.

Her long hair, never dyed and now greying a little, swung around her shoulders. As ageless as Cleopatra, smelling gorgeously of Coty's "Jasmine" her hair could be green, and no one would care.

After a while she called out "Ted, oh Ted," and her secretary appeared with a tray containing face powder and a mirror.

He held the tray while she put on a very little makeup. She wore no stockings. She allowed as how she only wears hats to funerals.

CARRIED EVERYWHERE

"Do you walk much, Miss Bankhead?" someone asked. "WALK! My God no," she answered. "I am carried EVERYWHERE in a sedan chair."

Later in the evening someone asked her to do her Las Vegas act.

His sister, Mrs. Margaret Tranah, of Durrashill Camp, Carlisle, Cumberland, England, made the appeal.

The Eldershaws live at 390 Burton Street East, Hamilton. No description was given in his sister's letter.

To Aid Civilians in War

Survival Army Needs Recruits

If Victoria is threatened or destroyed by a nuclear blast, survivors of militia and regular army will form up outside the contaminated area to aid civilians in their fight to live.

The military will have to direct police and fire services, traffic, control, movement of survivors, as well as maintain and repair water and sewerage services.

But, the Vancouver Island militia needs many more men to carry out its mission of forming into highly-organized, mobile support column and moving back into the devastated area, Brig. John S. Adam, commanding officer of 25 Militia Group, said last night.

Brig. Adam has only about 800 men under his command in the Island's six militia units.

"We need at least four times that many," he said. "We want to train as many men as we can."

He said he hopes several hundred city high school students, 15 to 19, will join the militia for the three-hour, Saturday morning basic training at Bay Street Armory, Oct. 15 to end of June.

A few "top" young soldiers will then be sent to a six-weeks summer camp and be paid about $200 each for the time there.

So I'm a Liar— A Dahling One

By TERRY HAMMOND

Tallulah Bankhead trotted out her big crosscut-saw-in-a-dry-cedar-log voice last night and called me a liar—but a "dahling liar," dahling."

She DID SO thank me for the taxi she plucked out from beneath my hand on a rainy night in front of His Majesty's Theatre in Montreal some 14 summers ago—"dahling, I'm always polite, you know."

"But how about that play you were in with Helmut Dantine, The Eagle Has Two Heads?" I asked her. "Did I lie about that?"

"My gawd wasn't it awful?"

she said, "in Washington we called it 'The Turkey Has Two Heads'."

"But did you see me in Montreal in Private Lives?"

I admitted I had.

"Wasn't it simply wonderful?"

And do you know, it really was.

Tax Relief Search
Is Frustrating

By R. O. MARRION
Colonist Staff Reporter

KELOWNA—A year of some frustration in seeking a better deal from the senior governments for municipal taxpayers will be reported to the Union of B.C. Municipalities here today when it opens its annual meeting.

In his presidential report, Reeve C. A. P. Murison of North Cowichan says the joint provincial-municipal committee set up to study municipal proposals in the past year could only agree to disagree.

Of a federal-municipal conference in Ottawa last October he says that its historical significance was greater than its practical accomplishment.

FINANCE POLICY

At its last annual meeting, in Nanaimo, the UBCM unanimously adopted a finance policy which sets as a long-term target a better deal for property-owners: municipal property taxes would pay for local services to property, and the people as a whole—the provincial and federal governments—for services to people such as education.

REQUEST GRANTED

The proposals were put before the provincial cabinet last fall, and "while none of the specific proposals were accepted, the request for a joint committee was granted," Reeve Murison reports.

Police said they regarded the theft as the work of an international gang of art thieves. The six paintings, regarded as the most valuable in the Toronto collection, were cut from their frames, by razor blades.

Children Victims

Madman Kills Six
With School Bomb

HOUSTON, Tex. (UPI)—A demented tile setter and ex-convict threw a powerful suitcase bomb into a crowd of children playing at Edgar A. (white) elementary school yesterday after failing to lure other children "to come here around me." About 900 children were in the school.

Police Capt. Weldon Waycott said the bomb killed six persons, including the man who made it and his seven-year-old son, Paul.

It also killed two other pupils and a teacher and a custodian, who were trying to drive the tile setter, Paul Harold Orgeron, off.

Waycott said 18 persons were injured. They were all pupils, except Mrs. R. E. Doty, the principal, who lost a leg. Orgeron, Waycott said, left a note which said:

Bandits Wear
Straw Hats

TORONTO (UPI)—Four bank bandits wearing straw hats, beanies and dark glasses escaped with $15,000 yesterday from a suburban branch of the Imperial Bank by locking the staff and one customer into a vault.

They wore a little lipstick for the glittering White House occasion and a brooch on her V-necked dress.

Beside her, Mrs. Eisenhower was a decided contrast, in a gold, heavily embossed brocade gown, with long white kid gloves and diamond earings and necklace.

Mrs. Khrushchev wore no gloves and no other jewelry beside the pin at her neck.

Soviet Boss Trades Jokes
At White House Reception

By JACK V. FOX

WASHINGTON, (UPI)—President Eisenhower and Nikita S. Khrushchev agreed yesterday shortly after the Soviet premier's arrival in America to hold frank and friendly talks aimed at a "better understanding" of East-West issues.

A few hours later, Khrushchev said he was "heartened" by the development. He told a formal White House dinner that "a good beginning has been made, and one could only hope that the final outcome would be even better."

The Soviet premier held his first face-to-face meeting with Eisenhower in mid-afternoon a few hours after arriving to a cool but proper welcome from an estimated 200,000 persons. Part of the time the two leaders were alone except for their interpreters.

They announced afterward in a joint communique that they would hold a series of informal talks at the president's Camp David retreat in Maryland's Catoctin Mountains when Khrushchev returns to Washington following a cross-country tour.

There they will deal at length with the problems upon which they touched only lightly yesterday—presumably including Berlin, disarmament, atomic controls and the Communist-encouraged rebellion in the strategic Southeast Asian kingdom of Laos.

The Camp David talks will be held Sept. 25, 26 and 27. According to the communique, Eisenhower and Khrushchev agreed yesterday on the course of their further discussions.

Blunt Words Exchanged

To clear the way for the top-level talks, Secretary of State Christian A. Herter and Soviet Foreign Minister, Andrei A. Gromyko will meet today to exchange views on the various problems to be tackled.

The Soviet leader and the president exchanged some fairly blunt words during their toasts at the White House dinner. Holding aloft his champagne glass, Khrushchev said that Russia and the United States had become too strong to quarrel.

But he went on to renew his oft-spoken boast that Russia is cutting down America's economic lead. He said that "tomorrow we will be as rich as you are and the day after tomorrow we will be even richer."

The president, for his part, told the stocky Soviet boss that debate was not enough to settle American-Soviet differences. He said the great strength of the two countries imposes on them a special responsibility to deal factually and truthfully with world problems.

Khrushchev agreed. He said it would not be too bad for weak countries to quarrel because they would suffer only setbacks that could be easily patched up. But when powerful nations clash, he said, it can turn the entire world into "shambles."

Mr. Pearson arrives in Victoria at 9:15 this morning.

Von Braun:

Can't Buy
Back
Lost Time

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (UPI)—Dr. Werner von Braun, German-born space pioneer, said yesterday Russia is far ahead of the United States in space projects "and there is no amount of money which can buy back lost time."

"I am convinced that if Russia stops immediately we could catch them in one, two or three years," von Braun told a news conference. "We have the brains, the resources, the capability, but we are hampered by continuous evaluations, justifications, re-justifications instead of progressing in our development in space projects."

Von Braun, director of development for the army ballistic missile centre at Redstone Arsenal here, said the United States needs to spend twice as much money as it now is spending on space projects. He blamed red tape, lack of funds, and complacency for the U.S. lag.

IT BEATS ME

By Jim Tang

VANCOUVER—This was a game everyone wanted to see, a game which needed no selling. Calgary Stampeders had been rudely jolted out of a win in the last seconds Saturday in Edmonton and had, for the moment at least, become the team B.C. Lions had to beat out for a playoff spot.

It was the big game of the season for both clubs, perhaps the one to decide which one would get into the playoffs. Yet, to many it was just as important that this was the first Vancouver appearance of Joe Kapp, the big rookie quarterback from the University of California who had become the most-talked-of newcomer in the WIFU this season.

Kapp, reports said, had more than ability going for him. He was a chance-taking, eye-catching performer with that indefinable quality which, for lack of a more descriptive word, is known as color. The 32,717 who jammed Empire Stadium Monday night offered additional proof that sport must be losing by subordinating the individual in that never-ceasing coaches' search for machine-like precision.

Monday's game wasn't, as many of us had hoped, any spectacular display of football. It was, as could have been expected with so much at stake, a bitterly-fought affair with thrilling plays only a sometime thing and tough defensive work making for, and masking up for, errors. It was, perhaps, a game for the more knowledgeable fan, exciting for the majority only because it was close.

Bothered no end by Chuck Gavin and Don Lord, the Lions' defensive ends, Kapp wound up minus 17 yards carrying despite one galling gallop which covered 19 yards. And he could be faulted for a definite inclination to be a do-it-yourself type who didn't get the most out of some pretty fair talent playing alongside him in the Calgary backfield because he didn't give it enough chances.

But he wasn't really any disappointment. He was always a threat with his roll-outs and it took sharp defensive work to contain his running. He's no Etcheverry, Jacobs, Tripucka or, perhaps, even Jackie Parker when it comes to passing but, like Parker, his legs make his arm a weapon which demands respect. He's hard to bring down, doesn't show any fear of being hit and isn't afraid to add lob when the occasion demands. Above all, he is an arresting player who commands attention. All eyes are on him when the Stampeders have the ball. You can't be sure of what'll happen.

As for the Lions, they are coming on—no sure thing yet for a playoff spot but coming on. That they have arrived as a football club was shown again Monday by the fact they won a game in which they really didn't play well. In previous seasons, the Lions even lost most of the games in which they did their best, were slaughtered when they were a bit off.

Lions did things the hard way Monday. They had an offensive edge, most of the way but something always seemed to go wrong when they got a chance to score—things like Ed Vereb missing a touchdown pass all by himself in the end zone, a bad-timed penalty or Randy Duncan, who wasn't having one of his good passing games, throwing directly to a defender on at least three of the five Calgary interceptions. And then, with a good chance to score before halftime, Sonny Homer fumbling a kick in Calgary territory with the Stamps regaining possession and marching from there for the game's first touchdown.

But, in another proving that they have arrived, the Lions never lost their poise. And they came up with the big play when it was needed—such things as Canadian-end Bruce Claridge making a fine catch for their first touchdown, Vic Kristopitis pulling them out of a hole with a rather spectacular interception on their three-yard line, and Lord hitting Kapp into a bad pass which Ted Tully intercepted to set up the winning touchdown. And then with the Stamps making a last bid late in the game, Quilter coming up with the ball when Kapp fumbled at mid-field.

Best of all was the play of the Lions' defensive unit, which includes six bona fide Canadians and Quilter, a Canadian by reason of naturalization. It played Calgary's powerful line to a standstill and, as statistics show, kept Kapp pretty well under control.

Coach Wayne Robinson, experienced enough to know he would sink or swim with the home-brews, has given his Canadian talent the full play and the Lions' 5-3 showing for the first half of the season augurs well for the future. But Robinson isn't standing still there. He has a sort of shuttle service going with import talent and it already paid off in the acquisition of Gavin, a late cut from Chicago Cardinals who was a standout from the start and improves with each game.

Playoffs? Don't count on it yet. With Saskatchewan Roughriders perhaps destined for a winless season, the Lions could miss it even with a 9-7 record, and to get that they mustn't stumble in the two games left with the desperate Riders, win two of six evenly divided between Winnipeg, Edmonton and Calgary. But make it or not, a successful season has already been assured for the Lions. At last they belong.

Oklahoma Oil Producer, 40, Hits 'Gusher' in Amateur

COLORADO SPRINGS (AP) — Dee Reagle, a 40-year-old amateur golf champion of Tuesday.

Reagle, who describes himself as a "light producer of heavy crude oil," outplayed 21-year-old Deane Beman of Silver Spring, Md., the 1959 British amateur champion, and 3. Wysong, playing in his second national championship, eliminated former Walker Cup captain Bill Campbell of Huntington, Va., 2 and 1.

These were the two big surprises of the first half of the second day's play over the breath-taking 7,010 par 71-yard Broadmoor course.

Defending champion Charlie Coe of Oklahoma City, his Walker Cup teammates Bill Hyndman and Billy Joe Patton and former amateur champions Harry Ward and Jack Westland were among the early winners.

Another reason is that Dorohoy has yet to sign a 1959-60 contract with Vancouver simply because he and Hall have different opinions over how much money should be paid for the ex-Victoria Cougar's services.

And, Eddie claims, that unless Hall makes the first move, it may be quite a while before he does sign a contract to play for Vancouver. Maybe not ever.

"Hall is trying to give me the same run-around he gives all his players. I won't go for that and he knows it. The next move is up to him because I'm quite content right where I am," scoffed Dorohoy.

Incompetent Builders Called Country-Wide Plague

The Canadian construction industry is plagued with a country-wide problem of incompetent builders, according to J. Eric Harrington, president of the Canadian Construction Association, in Victoria today to present a brief to the B.C. government.

Mr. Harrington said last night that Canada had far too many builders, and many of them were incompetent and lacking in financial backing.

Any one planning a new building should make sure the contract is placed in the hands of a sound building firm," he said.

"Giving the contract to the lowest bidder without making full inquiries is just asking for trouble," he added.

He said CCA power to halt the activities of builders who were quoting low prices and then failing to complete the job according to specification, was "limited."

"There is nothing to stop anyone from calling himself a builder," he explained.

"Competition among competent builders is keen enough to ensure that the public will get a proper price," he said.

"The trouble arises when one of these quick, one-deal operators puts in an uneconomic bid."

"Any homebuilder should go to the extra expense of consulting an experienced builder," and a lawyer before signing a contract" was his advice.

While Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation approves plans for NHA loan homes and has the work inspected during construction, Mr. Harrington said this was not full protection for the owner.

"The NHA makes only two inspections, and these inspections are made not to safeguard the owner, but in its own interests," he said.

Mr. Harrington is on a cross-Canada tour to meet provincial governments as well as CCA members.

Don't Call Them Cops

London constables may prefer to be called "cop" rather than "bobby"—but anyone calling a Greater Victoria constable a cop is in for a rude reply.

Of course, local police spokesmen agree, it may depend on who uses the term, and in what way.

Generally, however, "cop" or "billy," or any other nickname for a police officer is not acceptable to force members.

Trouble is, on this continent

most nicknames for policemen have insulting connotations.

The London constable may feel as a London police magistrate says, that the term "bobby" sounds a bit prissy these days.

Local policemen agree: "Just call us 'officer,' or 'constable.' Never mind the nickname."

Different Views of Year

Late Start This Year Set for Courthouse

Minister Hesitant On Plans

Three years ago this week Public Works Minister W. N. Chant solemnly promised 1,500 cheering Victorians, who packed the Royal Theatre for an election campaign meeting, that a start would be made within one year on a new Victoria courthouse.

Last Jan. 22 in the Throne Speech, which is written by Premier Bennett, Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross said a start would be made on a Victoria courthouse this year.

BLASTING ONLY

Yesterday Works Minister Chant hesitantly assured a Colonist reporter a start will be made on a Victoria courthouse this year, even if it is only blasting of foundations in December.

He explained that Premier Bennett sometimes has different views of a year—a calendar year, a year from when he speaks, or the fiscal year which ends March 31.

WINTER JOBS

"We will be starting construction on the courthouse before the end of the year. Work is being planned to give employment during winter months," Mr. Chant said.

He said he expects to call for tenders for rock removal in November. "We expect a continuity of work. As soon as blasting and rock removal is finished, construction men will be ready to proceed with the actual building.

PUSH AHEAD

"Plans are being pushed ahead at all possible speed," he said. "I have instructed my staff to have plans ready in time to provide winter work."

He said that too early a start would overlap into the fall when there is plenty of work and would defeat the winter work plan.

DEEP BASEMENTS

"There is a tremendous amount of rock to be removed. Deep basements will be provided for storing and protection of irreplaceable government documents," he said. Rock from the courthouse site on Cathedral Hill will be used to make the base of a road on the lower part of Government House grounds.

The courthouse will include the land registry office, registrar of companies and a multitude of court facilities.

Plans to include other government offices have been dropped for the time being, but the design of the courthouse will be such that additions may be added.

NANAIMO — A 17-year-old youth pleaded guilty to hit-and-run driving in juvenile court here yesterday. He was given a 10-week probation term and lost his driving privileges until the end of this month.

DUNCAN — No date has been set for Crown Zellerbach of Canada's Nitinat Camp loggers to return to work as IV. Local 180 officers are still negotiating with the company on a basic rate for fallers.

Leniency was shown because the youth had surrendered himself to police two weeks after the accident. Police agreed that they had no idea of his identity before he reported to the police station.

DUNCAN — All but one city alderman will represent this city at the Union of British Columbia Municipalities convention that starts today at Kelowna.

Mayor Jack Dobson and Aldermen John Kerrone, R. K. Cairns and J. H. Saunders are at the convention but Ald. Steve Saunders was not able to attend. Convention ends Friday.

DUNCAN — One of the original stakers of the Bluebell Copper Mine, south of Duncan, more than 30 years ago, Charles Andrew Ryan, 84, will be buried here tomorrow.

He died Tuesday at Resthaven Hospital, Sidney, in the community where he was born.

Most of his life was spent in the logging industry where he became a familiar figure and a well-known sled builder when horses were still being used.

He was at one time a camp foreman and later a contractor.

Bluebell Mine is behind Cowichan Station, on a hill that is now dotted with old, caving-in shafts where many companies fought to find a wealthy vein to rival the highly productive diggings at Mount Sicker, to the north.

Surviving are his widow, Agelina of Saanich; a son, Patrick of Koksalah; two brothers, John and William of Duncan; two grandchildren, nieces and nephews.

Rev. W. E. Greenhalgh will officiate at the service in the Hirst Funeral Chapel at 2 p.m. Burial will be in the family plot at St. Peter's Anglican Church.

NANAIMO — City sportsmen have been warned that hunting or shooting in this area will be prosecuted, city officials state.

Newcastle Island is a popular picnic area. There are a few deer there and those which are, are partially tame.

CAMPBELL RIVER — Modern, light-reflecting street name signs are to be erected on 50 intersections in Campbell River.

Similar to signs in use in Victoria, Vancouver and New Westminster, the signs have black letters on an off-white background during the day.

At night, under the lights of a car, the background glows brightly, making the signs easy to read.

The signs have been ordered by the village commission, which has agreed to spend $1,000 on buying the signs and

Third Look This Year Requested

Greater Victoria councils will be asked to take another look at a plan to hold fluoridation referendums next December—and for some the look will be their third this year.

Victoria Chamber of Commerce has written the four councils, plus the Greater Victoria school board, asking that they hear representations for a December vote from the chamber's fluoridation subcommittee.

Victoria council, which originally approved a December fluoridation vote, recently changed its mind in favor of a proposal by the Victoria-Esquimalt health board that a referendum be postponed until a 12-month test of fluoride treatment of children's teeth is completed.

Other councils had agreed to place December referendums, but have not yet had a chance to review the health board's recommendation.

Five-Cent Postage Still Hurts

Prospect Lake area residents have renewed a protest to Ottawa that letters addressed to them must bear five cents postage, while letters to most of Saanich are delivered for four cents.

Residents of the area have lodged their complaint with Defence Minister G. R. Pearkes, the member of parliament for Esquimalt-Saanich, and the postmaster-general.

A spokesman for the district explained that few people realize the postage differential and send letters to the Prospect Lake area bearing only four cents. Recipients must then pay two cents to get the letters.

Driver Misses Serious Injury As Truck Careens Down Bank

A Victoria truck driver, his vehicle loaded with tanks of highly inflammable oxygen, escaped with only chest injuries yesterday when his truck careened down a steep bank near Jordan River.

Max Allman, 1264 Denman,

was rushed to Victoria by West Coast ambulance. He was treated at Royal Jubilee Hospital and released.

Police said the accident happened about 5 p.m. on the B.C. Electric road near Jordan River.

The truck apparently went out of control before going over the 50-ft embankment, witnesses said. A truck company spokesman said the tanks could have been "quite dangerous if the truck had caught fire."

Eric Mallett, chairman of the Greater Victoria Community Chest, will speak at a meeting of the Victoria Life Underwriters today at noon in the Pacific Club.

Not-Guilty Plea In Murder Trial

NANAIMO — Mrs. Rachael Silvester pleaded not guilty here yesterday to a charge of murder.

Her trial began before Mr. Justice Harry Sullivan after the judge had granted separate hearings to Mrs. Silvester and Mrs. Rossi Trapp, both of Port Alberni.

Mrs. Silvester is accused of murdering Joan Venne, 22. Mrs. Venne, it is alleged, died following an attempted abortion.

The public gallery of Nanaimo's courtroom was well crowded with women.

Draw Charge Dismissed

NANAIMO—Magistrate Lionel Beevor-Potts yesterday dismissed lottery charges brought against Pleasant Valley Service and Sales Ltd.

Impaired Driver Jailed

DUNCAN—A Chemainus trucker was sentenced to 14 days in jail in police court here Monday when he was convicted of a second offence of impaired driving.

He is Peter Helland, who also had his driver's licence suspended for 30 days. RCMP Const. Ronald Budd testified he saw a car being driven by Helland "weaving" down Indian Road, south of Duncan, and that at times the car's wheels touched gravel off the paved road.

The company had distributed tickets giving a chance on a $1,700 trailer to customers making purchases. The magistrate said police action had been "premature"—tickets were seized before the draw was actually held.

Harold Hine, counsel for the company, said that this was not a lottery—it involved skill. A certain question had to be answered by the person whose ticket was drawn from the drum before he or she could receive the prize.

One of the questions was put to a prosecution witness, Const. Raymond Langford James. Const. James agreed he had answered it wrongly when asked by Mr. Hine before the hearing began.

None of the seized property will be returned to the company before the time required to lodge an appeal is expired, the court ruled.

'Lots More in Court Since 60 Zones'

DUNCAN—Magistrate A. C. Sutton said yesterday that since the maximum speed limit was raised to 60 m.p.h. on British Columbia highways "a lot more" careless driving cases have come before his Duncan court.

He made the comment yesterday in police court after hearing three more cases. Magistrate Sutton fined each driver $30 and suspended the driver's licence of one for 30 days.

The suspension was handed down against RCAF electrician Maurice Anderson of St. James, Man., who caused $1,500 damage to his car Monday night when it rolled off the Trans-Canada Highway two miles north of here.

Police said Anderson passed two motorcyclists just before the accident. While cutting back into his own lane, Anderson said, the steering "stuck."

Also fined were Vivian Willis of Cowichan Station, who caused $800 damage to a car he was driving when it went out of control and hit a telephone pole near Fairbridge Sept. 5, and A. P. Islay, a used car salesman, did $400 damage to a car when it rolled as he failed to make a turn on the Maple Bay Road Sept. 5. They all pleaded guilty.

Truce Forestalls Labor Warfare

COURTENAY—A threatened labor war at Courtenay has been avoided following talks between officials of the Comox Logging Company and the IWA Local 1-363.

Some 225 members of the local who are employed by the company refused to return to work following the end of the province-wide IWA strike.

Point at issue was the location of marshalling points for loggers. Talks in Vancouver over the past two days have resulted in a temporary truce.

ARBITRATION

Jake Epp, financial secretary of the local, said last night both company and union spokesmen had agreed to submit the dispute to an arbitration board headed by Mayor Bill Moore of Courtenay.

Mr. Epp said both management and labor had agreed to accept the majority ruling of the arbitration committee as binding.

Earlier, when union members employed by the Comox Logging Company had refused to return to work, Mike Poje, general superintendent for the company, declared the strike was illegal and threatened legal action.

Mr. Epp warned flatly that any attempt by the company to import workers to the area would lead to "open warfare."

Work in the company's plant is expected to begin today.

Meanwhile, at most of the other logging companies in the district under the Courtenay local's jurisdiction, work has started, putting an end to the multi-million dollar, two-month strike which saw 27,000 B.C. woodworkers out of work.

DUNCAN—A Duncan trim saw operator on the green chain at the B.C. Forest Products Limited mill at Youbou had his right hand severed at the wrist yesterday, his first day back at work after the two-month IWA strike.

Company officials said Howard Todd, 38, was rushed to King's Daughters' Hospital at Duncan. It is not known how the accident happened.

The accident happened about 8:30 a.m., shortly after the mill went into full operation. Hospital officials said Todd was in good condition last night.

Moved Road Barrier

Sidney Man Fined

DUNCAN—Sidney businessman John Moore was fined $10 in court here yesterday for removing a North Cowichan municipal road warning barrier.

He pleaded guilty through a friend, A. P. Islay, of Maple Bay, who was with him Sept. 6 when the barrier was removed.

Police said the barrier held a blinking red light and was a warning for motorists that the road was under repair.

Youth's Death Accident

COURTENAY—A verdict of accidental death has been returned by a coroner's jury following Friday's electrocution of 17-year-old Norman Hardy in the Canadian Collieries' automatic power station on the Lake Trail Road here Friday afternoon.

Hardy died instantly when he touched an 18,000-volt high-tension power line in the unattended building which houses equipment to operate fans in the Tsable River mine.

RCMP here would not comment on any further contemplated action following the jury's finding that Hardy died while illegally on the premises. The dead youth was with several companions at the time of the accident.

Coroner Thomas Menzies conducted the inquest.

Murison Reports

Tax Relief Search Is Frustrating

By R. O. MARRION
Colonist Staff Reporter

KELOWNA—A year of some frustration in seeking a better deal from the senior governments for municipal taxpayers will be reported to the Union of B.C. Municipalities here today when it opens its annual meeting.

In his presidential report, Reeve C. A. P. Murison of North Cowichan says the joint provincial-municipal committee set up to study municipal proposals in the past year could only agree to disagree.

Of a federal-municipal conference in Ottawa last October he says that its historical significance was greater than its practical accomplishment.

FINANCE POLICY

At its last annual meeting, in Nanaimo, the UBCM unanimously adopted a finance policy which sets as a long-term target a better deal for property owners: municipal property taxes would pay for local services to property, and the people as a whole—the provincial and federal governments—for services to people, such as education.

REQUEST GRANTED

The proposals were put before the provincial cabinet last fall, and "while none of the specific proposals were accepted, the request for a joint committee was granted," Reeve Murison reports.

Police said they doubted there would be any value for the paintings in this country and suggested that the thieves might try to smuggle them to Europe or South America or else seek a cut from an insurance company.

Gallery curator Martin Baldwin valued the masterpieces at $700,000.

Police said they regarded the theft as the work of an international gang of art thieves.

The six paintings, regarded as the most valuable in the Toronto collection, were cut from their frames, by razor blades.

Madman Kills Six With School Bomb

HOUSTON, Tex. (UPI)—A demented tile setter and ex-convict threw a powerful suit-case bomb into a crowd of children playing at Edgar A. Poe (white) elementary school yesterday after failing to lure other children "to come here around me." About 300 children were in the school.

Police Capt. Weldon Waycott said the bomb killed six persons, including the man who made it and his seven-year-old son, Paul.

It also killed two other pupils and a teacher and a custodian, who were trying to drive the tile setter, Paul Harold Orgeron, off.

Waycott said 18 persons were injured. They were all pupils, except Mrs. R. E. Doty, the principal, who lost a leg.

Orgeron, Waycott said, left a note which said:

She Speaks English!

Mrs. K Plain But Pleasant

WASHINGTON (AP)—Mrs. Nikita Khrushchev conformed to American custom here Tuesday and wore a formal gown to the White House, though her husband came in a business suit.

She spoke English to President Eisenhower, and calmly went through the fanfare of a full-scale official U.S. welcoming ceremony.

She called off any plans for sightseeing to take an afternoon nap, while her husband kept on the go.

With grey hair pulled back in a low bun, with grey eyes, a round and pleasant face, the wife of the Soviet premier is a short and stocky woman with an upturned nose and a crinkling smile.

She looked simple and plain, with no lipstick, as she stepped out of the giant Russian TU-114 plane.

Tall Mrs. Christian Herter, wife of the U.S. secretary of state, gave her a bouquet of long red roses.

Grandmotherly is the word used most to describe Mrs. Khrushchev, who brought up four of Khrushchev's children by his first wife.

A teacher who is said to have taught herself English, she started off by starting a conversation with the president as he sat down beside her in the limousine for the motorcade ride into Washington.

Later, at the White House formal dinner, Mrs. Khrushchev, in long teal blue and black iridescent taffeta-like floor-length gown, chatted a bit with Mrs. Eisenhower.

She wore a little lipstick for the glittering White House occasion and a brooch on her V-necked dress.

Beside her, Mrs. Eisenhower was a decided contrast, in a gold, heavily embossed brocade gown, with long white kid gloves and diamond ear-rings and necklace.

Mrs. Khrushchev wore no gloves and no other jewelry beside the pin at her neck.

Bandits Wear Straw Hats

TORONTO (UPI)—Four bank bandits wearing straw hats, beanies and dark glasses escaped with $15,000 yesterday from a suburban branch of the Imperial Bank by locking the staff and one customer into a vault.

Soviet Boss Jokes With U.S. Spy Chief

By JACK V. FOX

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Eisenhower and Nikita S. Khrushchev agreed yesterday shortly after the Soviet premier's arrival in America to hold frank and friendly talks aimed at a "better understanding" of East-West issues.

A few hours later, Khrushchev said he was "heartened" by the development. He told a formal White House dinner that "a good beginning has been made, and one could only hope that the final outcome would be even better."

The Soviet premier held his first face-to-face meeting with Eisenhower in mid-afternoon a few hours after arriving to a cool but proper welcome from an estimated 200,000 persons. Part of the time the two leaders were alone except for their interpreters.

They announced afterward in a joint communiqué that they would hold a series of informal talks at the president's Camp David retreat in Maryland's Catoctin Mountains when Khrushchev returns to Washington following a cross-country tour.

There they will deal at length with the problems upon which they touched only lightly yesterday—presumably including Berlin, disarmament, atomic controls and the Communist-encouraged rebellion in the strategic Southeast Asian kingdom of Laos.

The Camp David talks will be held Sept. 25, 26 and 27. According to the communiqué, Eisenhower and Khrushchev agreed yesterday on the course of their further discussions.

Blunt Words Exchanged

To clear the way for the top-level talks, Secretary of State Christian A. Herter and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko will meet today to exchange views on the various problems to be tackled.

The Soviet leader and the president exchanged some fairly blunt words during their toasts at the White House dinner. Holding aloft his champagne glass, Khrushchev said that Russia and the United States had become too strong to quarrel.

But he went on to renew his oft-spoken boast that Russia is cutting down America's economic lead. He said that "tomorrow we will be as rich as

Shambles."

Khrushchev agreed. He said it would not be too bad for weak countries to quarrel because they would suffer only scratches that could be easily patched up. But when powerful nations clash, he said, it can turn the entire world into

"Shambles."

The president, for his part, told the stocky Soviet boss that debate was not enough to settle American-Soviet differences. He said the great strength of the two countries imposes on them a special responsibility to deal factually and truthfully with world problems.

Khrushchev agreed. He said it would not be too bad for weak countries to quarrel because they would suffer only scratches that could be easily patched up. But when powerful nations clash, he said, it can turn the entire world into

The Soviet leader and the president exchanged some fairly blunt words during their toasts at the White House dinner. Holding aloft his champagne glass, Khrushchev said that Russia and the United States had become too strong to quarrel.

But he went on to renew his oft-spoken boast that Russia is cutting down America's economic lead. He said that "tomorrow we will be as rich as

Shambles."

The president, for his part, told the stocky Soviet boss that debate was not enough to settle American-Soviet differences. He said the great strength of the two countries imposes on them a special responsibility to deal factually and truthfully with world problems.

Pearson Urges:

A-Control Must Be Our Own

VANCOUVER (CP)—Canadian armed forces should not be armed with tactical nuclear weapons as long as their use remains under control of some other power, including the United States, Liberal Leader Lester Pearson said Tuesday.

Mr. Pearson called for a nuclear policy that asks the ending of atomic tests as a first step toward abolition of atomic weapons and atomic warfare.

If the fall-out danger is great, he said, then Canada should take the stand that "we don't intend to either make or use them."

Mr. Pearson arrives in Victoria at 9:15 this morning.

Von Braun:

Can't Buy Back Lost Time

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (UPI)—Dr. Werner von Braun, German-born space pioneer, said yesterday Russia is far ahead of the United States in space projects "and there is no amount of money which can buy back lost time."

"I am convinced that if Russia stops immediately we could catch them in one, two or three years," von Braun told a news conference. "We have the brains, the resources, the capability, but we are hampered by continuous evaluations, justifications, re-justifications instead of progressing in our development in space projects."

Von Braun, director of development for the army ballistic missile centre at Redstone Arsenal here, said the United States needs to spend twice as much money as it now is spending on space projects. He blamed red tape, lack of funds, and complicity for the U.S. lag.

Boos and Applause

There were no serious incidents. But the world's No. 1 Communist encountered a flurry of boos when he drove about a block from Blair House, the official government mansion where he is staying, to the White House for his formal meeting with the president.
